IN MEMORIAM. HENRY JAMES ANDERSON, M. D., L.L. D. At a joint meeting of the Irish Emigrant Society and the Trustees of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, held as 51 Chambers st., New York, on Monday, January 10, 1876, ttee appointed at a previous meeting made the ful-

The Committee appointed by the Irish Emigrant Society and the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank to prepare for these institutions, respectfully report as follows:

It does not seem to your committee possible, within the marrow scope of any formal resolution, to give adequate expression to the ventiments of veneration and love with which the officers and members of these institutions cherish the memory of our departed brother, and the deep regret with which they deplore his loss.

Henry James Anderson died at Lahore, in India, on the 19th of Uctober, 1875, in the seventy-eventh year of his ange. His career was in many respectaremarkable—distinguished no loss by high intellectual attainments than by practical and effectual benevolence, and by a charity boundless as human necessities and human sorrows.

Educated in Golumbia College, in the city of New York, and devoting himself scarnestly to scientific sindies, he was raised to the responsible and honorable post of 'Emeritum Protessor of Mathematics and Astronomy' in that seat of learning, and he was also use of its traitees.

Throughall his long life he may be a charity boundless as Through himself the new following the seat of learning and he was also use of its traitees.

Through himself on the life he may be a charity seat of learning and he was also use of its traitees.

Through himself on the life he may be a charity and advancement of however, and repoteed in every achievement of science as a new triumph of human intellect and a new reason for gratitude to food.

Master of many languages, rich in storce of various knowings and regioned in every achievement of science, he was a scholar of the true and rare type, lowing learning for itself, for the vigor and freedom with which it sendows the inderstanding and the light and warmy his sheds on the heart.

It was in the fainess and maturity of his intellectual powers that he became a convert to the Catholic Sath, and he was than the series of the Catholic Church. He was President of the Catholic Church. He was President of the Catholic Church. He was President of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, President of the Catho that honored Pontiff to the faithful children of the Catholic Church.

Then Dr. Anderson proceeded to Sydney, New South Wales, in order to take part in the scientific observation of the transit of Venus. From thence he crossed into Asia and had just returned from exploration in the Himsiaya Mountains, when death met him on the plains of India, and he breathed his last far away from kindred and friends. A life thas fruitful, passed in the performance of every duty, the development of every generous impulse, of every power of intellect and every refinement of taste, is not without some return even here.

It is allowed us to hope and pray that its full and perfect reward will be accorded above.

For us, our estimate of the true value and worth of our departed brother and friend is but enhanced by the sense of his loss.

Our veneration for his virtues will grow as time wears on, and on the records of these institutions among the foremost in the list of those who have been its most efficient and onored officers and friends will be inscribed the name of Henry James Anderson."

His life's journey over—his duty performed—his work one—be the Christian prayer breathed over his grave, "May te rist in beace."

His hie's journey over done—be the Christian prayer breathed over his grave, "May he rest in peace."

Your committee, therefore, submits for adoption the following resolution —

Resolved, That the members of the Irish Emigrant Society and the trustees of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank sincerely tender their sentiments of sympathy and condolence to the hereaved family of Dr. Anderson.

Resolved, That the members of the Irish Emigrant Society and the trustees of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank do attend the obsequies of the deceased.

Resolved, That the report of the committee be entered in full on our minutes, and that an engrossed copy be signed by the committee and sent to the family of the deceased.
